A beautiful dancing tollet recently made good luck. In this city consisted of a thort princessecut dress of white Victoria wilk, the goods having a corded surface and a very lushaving a corded surface and avery has-trous sheeny daish. The front of the skirt was made of white satin dudies, laid in rich folds of four each, and alter-nating with these were punds reaching the whole length of the skirt, wrought with an embroidery of pearl and amber bends in a heavy raised diskin. Gold tree odged the short sie was and bordered the heart-shaped opening of the corsike, which fastened down the bark with math-er-o-pearl buttons, which reflected lights of ruby pearl, and gold

A robe worn by the Queen of Italy shows that ladies in that chantry con hardly make enough of the crave for walst coats. She were what is styled a "Hincoats. She wents what is styled a "Hindoo" basque, three vestis out above another, forming one single corsage. The under one is in cultuss shape, rightly bendembroidered, and buttonlig close to the throat, with 'eweled fasteblags. The second one is shorter everywhere, and does not quite meet in front, the curve being outlined with a delle to fringe of gold. The outer one is a short founded Zoman, or Bolero Jacket, minus in sleeves, this also richtly embroidered and made of velvet. In point of culm, the three bisques are alike, but of distinct shade, softly immonizing. In the matter of faint, the inner walstenas are of light sliken materials.

The skirt has a full back, with voluminous Louis Quinze pour above. Louis Quinze pouf above.

Lady-like and elegant travelling costumes are made of fine, softly draping tamel's-hair goods in tiny blue and gold checks, with blus bands and panels of Russian-blue felvet, with vest to correspond, fastened with small French gold buttons finely chased. With the protection of a dust-cloak, this one dress would suffice for a journey of any length without the necessity of added costume for hotel wear.

Yellow and white and sea-green and white are favorite combinations of color in Persian dreases sent over for elegant wear at summer resorts. In one instance is shown a tofict with a skirt of rich white lace with panels of white, moirs wern under a trained princess dress of pale chartreure green brounde astin, which opens in front from the edge of the bodice downward, to display the elegant lace-donneed petitocal.
